Watch this! Throw in some Duane Eddy guitar and a King Curtis-like sax solo from Clarence Clemons and you have a song that encapsulates pretty much everything great about the previous 20 years of rock n' roll history. Funny enough though, the song was not included on the album when it was initially released.

While this isn't exactly a bad-ass, the song was also introduced to a much younger audience. The song has gone on to become one of his twin calling cards – shout out to "Cat Scratch Fever" – a classic rock radio staple, and our choice for a high spot on our Top Classic Rock Songs list.

Learn to play the best riffs. A later incarnation of that band Bartlett was the one who recorded it on a lark, complete with stammering "Bu-bu-bu-baby" vocals, as a joke and loving tribute to his brother Gary, who actually did have a stutter: "It was basically just an instrumental and I was fooling around," he said. And melody and lyrics are also included.
