The idea of individual human rights and freedoms is alien to an understanding of the state that postulates the collective unity of leader, party and people. Given the involvement of four nuclear weapon possessors, the use of nuclear weapons cannot be ruled .

This is, however, an unlikely proposition in a country with norms that are restrictive. On the other hand, many Chinese experts recognize that there are various South Korean domestic and intra-alliance obstacles to such scenarios, at least in the near term. For the foreseeable future, China is likely to respond particularly strongly to at least four U.

The other five participants in the six-party talks share an interest in a demilitarized peninsula. For moral and political reasons, it is therefore necessary to maintain the human rights pressure on North Korea visibly and lastingly. The deal was put together under the previous conservative South Korean administration of President Park Geun-hye, the daughter of Park Chung-hee.
